Merely no terms to spell out. We have read through and i also am confident that i will gonna read yet again again in the future. You will not sense monotony at anytime of your own time (that's what catalogs are for about should you question me).

Excerpt: . . . by social injustice and mOTiTTgfor social reconstruction. And they wonder that the world is not saved! The ritualistic churches, trained in the compact social organization of feudalism, are in a better condition to grapple with social problems, as their larger social activities amply testify. As the turmoil of business competition has lapsed into the calm of monopolistic production, and as bourgeois property, with the prevalence of the corporate form of business enterprise, has taken on more and more a collective character, it might naturally be expected that the moral code of the trading class would show an increasing appreciation of social values. To some extent this expectation has been realized. Some of the more flagrant commercial abuses have received a moral condemnation, and a higher standard of business integrity and a keener sense of civic duty have been insisted upon. But, for the most part, the limitations of the individualistic point of view, so deeply ingrained in Puritan thought, have proven too strong to permit of any substantial alteration in the Puritan outlook, and the change in the economic structure of bourgeois production has been reflected in Puritan morality, not as a definite recognition of the ethical import of social relations, so much as a dimly perceived lack and vacuity in the Puritan system which its intellectual custodians have not had sufficient ingenuity to fill. But while the failure of Puritanism to solve the problems and enforce the vital requirements of today sufficiently testifies...
