Excerpt: . . . wrath refused them aid; Their youth in fiery battle fell, As blooms untimely fade. For maidens came no marriage-day, No nuptial songs awoke; Their priests before the altars bled, And hearts of widows broke. Then God arose, as, cheered by wine, A sleeping warrior starts; With rankling shame to brand His foes He smote their hinder parts. And He rejected Josephs tent, Nor tribe of Ephraim chose; The tribe of Judah He preferrd, Where His lovd Zion rose. His sanctuary there He built, High towering to the skies, And firm upon its deathless base As earths foundation lies. His servant David then He calld And from the sheepfold drew, From tending on the new-droppd lambs That sucked the parent ewe. To lead Gods people, now his flock. New hopes and duties spring; But David strives with hand and heart To reign--a shepherd king. PSALM...
