Confessio Amantis (The Lovers Confession) is a 33, 000 line Middle English poem by John Gower, which uses the confession made by an ageing lover to the chaplain of Venus as a frame story for a collection of shorter narrative poems. According to its prologue, it was composed at the request of Richard II. It stands with the works of Chaucer, Langland, and the Pearl poet as one of the great works of late 14th century English literature. In genre it is usually considered a poem of consolation, a medieval form inspired by Boethius Consolation of Philosophy and typified by works such as Pearl. Despite this, it is more usually studied alongside other tale collections with similar structures, such as the Decameron of Boccaccio, and particularly Chaucers Canterbury Tales, with which the Confessio has several stories in common. To his contemporaries, Gowers work was generally as well known as the poetry of Chaucer: Caxton printed Gowers work alongside Chaucers, and Caxton became part of the early canon of English literature. But it was Chaucers works which...
