Personal confidence lifts you from no one to someone. It takes you from where you are to a new life of your dream. I quickly learnt this at a tender age. As a young man growing up, in one of the remotest part of Papua New Guinea, I watched and learned how my dad, Mr. Hetri Bay Aidua, a living model on personal confidence and motivation in our home as well as the congregation he led as the champion leader and congregation chairman and a one-time president of Youth (The Acronym DYS representing Dona Yu Seka; It means New or more appropriately known as Young Blood of Dona) in my village. Dona is the little village I come from. Being successful as a company executive at a tender age, I started coaching professional development to interested business owners and general public. Over the last decade, I trained individuals how to build their own personal confidence and that of their workers to maximize their personal or organizational productivity. At this juncture, I realize that not only business people or workers but everyone in Papua New Guinea and in this respect, the whole world is asking the same question: What do I really need to help me achieve my life goals Everyone from elementary school kids up to college students, the street vendors and beggars, the church goers, housewives and husbands, single mums and dads, business owners, to corporate executives, right up to the politicians at the corridors of power are asking the same question. This book serves to fill in the yawning gap left unfilled by the formal education system. In school you were taught to...
