The Epistle to the Philippians is not doctrinal statement, but personal tenderness. It is an outburst of the heart, springing from the deepest inward need of loving fellowship. It unites exquisite sympathy with courageous faith. The words from a Roman dungeon, may instruct us in review and outlook after sixty years of our Brooklyn church's life. With reverent gratitude St. Paul cherishes devout and joyous reminiscence. Memory had a wide scope in these words, from the first day until now. There are concrete facts, local references. Philippi was...
